

NATIONALS TAKE HORRID REVENGE

"Hogg Was Hit and Keeley Was It," Says Wit.

RUN 'ROUND BASES TO DISPEL CHILL

Close Storm Shutters on Port Side and Proceed With Ridiculous Exhibition.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Patriotism must not forbid the admission that it was a cold day for the Yankees yesterday. Up at American League Park they closed the storm shutters on the port side as you enter, and the few faithful huddled together for what warmth there might be that way, and the turnstile at the coming-in gate got rusty for want of turning, and everybody present looked at everybody else—and that didn't require a wide-ranged vision—as who would say, "What are you doing here?" and to round off the disagreeableness the home team, which is absolutely last in the race, lost to the Washington team, which is next to last, and the score was 12 to 2.

Hogg Routed Early.

Hogg set out to pitch for the Yankees and Keeley for Washington, and this arrangement gave rise to a conundrum that ought to go like wild in the grand minstrel first part, viz., namely:

What was the difference between Hogg and Keeley?

Well, Mr. Bones, what WAS the difference between Hogg and Keeley?

Well, sub, one was hit and the other was IT.

Mr. Clymer will now give a humorous recitation entitled, "How I Plucked a Triple In the Garden of Hits Where They Said Only Singles Grew."

Thank you kindly, Master Clymer, and if you will wait a bit Mr. McBride will essay to tell you how you may now come home. Mr. Street will hit to center, and Mr. McBride will score. Second part, is it not? It is. Three more for Washington in the third, Ganley three-bagging and scoring on Unglaub's hit to left, Clymer hitting along third-base line, Unglaub scoring during a well-earned slumber incident to Mr. Hogg's pitching, and Freeman hitting through short, scoring Clymer.

Lake to the Rescue.

At which point Mr. Hogg retires, and Mr. Lake, resplendent in variegated sweater and willing as a candidate, takes up the battle, and allows no more than five scores to Washington in any one inning, the example being the sixth. It is just here that Shipke walks and steals second, and Keeley bunts and steals second, after which Milan starts the home-running by a mighty bang to right, on which he drives in Shipke, and Keeley covers the diamond himself. Anything goes from this time on, and to Ganley is safe on Conroy's error, and Clymer seizes upon this as an opportunity to make a home-run hit to right, scoring Ganley by the way. At this time we are unable to find Mr. Keeley, except fugitively, as it were, and our stinky two look mighty well compared with the round dozen of the Nationals, who are being calculated to take most of the brag out of even a professional New York.

Giants Win, But Lose Lead When Pirates Take Two; Tigers and Naps Forge Ahead, But Sox Have a Chance

Pittsburg Passes McGraw's Aggregation by Fraction of a Point.

Easy for Smoketown Contingent If Phillies Are Lucky Today.

Had the National League season wound up last night Pittsburg would be the champions for 1908.

While New York was beating the Phillies yesterday the Pirates landed a double-header from St. Louis, and this put them to the front by a fraction of a point. In other words the Pirates today have a percentage of .538 24-35, while New York's figures are .537 24-35. A mere whisker margin, to be sure, yet nevertheless a substantial one to give Pittsburg the championship had the National League season closed last night. In the official standing both Pittsburg and New York have the same percentage with .538, the Pirates having won two more games than the Giants, but also having one more loss. This difference, however slight, would, as related above, give the Pirates the lead had the season ended on Friday.

Pittsburg made the greatest gain of the day, as its double victory enabled it to break the tie with Chicago for second place and nose to the top of the ladder.

Today's games are made all the more important by the results of yesterday. Pittsburg by taking the last game from St. Louis today and beating Chicago on Sunday can win the championship by a game if the Phillies beat the Giants today, notwithstanding that the New York game is declared a tie. Providing, of course, the recent Chicago and New York game is declared a tie. If the case was turned with the Cubs winning their two games, one from Cincinnati and the other from Pittsburg, with New York making the above record, then Chicago and the Giants would be at the end with ninety-eight victories and fifty-five defeats, which would make a nice situation for Pullman to be placed in.

Doping it out that way Pittsburg has something on New York and the Cubs this morning, notwithstanding that they are compelled to meet Chicago on the latter's own grounds on Sunday. But, an unexpected defeat at St. Louis or Cincinnati today will practically kill off either team if New York cleans up three out of four.

BATTLING JOHNSON BADLY BATTERED

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 3.—Jim Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, last night bested Battling Johnson decisively after seven rounds of terrific milling. The bout was scheduled for twenty rounds, but the referee was compelled to stop the slaughter after seven rounds.

Johnson was a sorry sight after seven rounds and he was badly battered. Barry did all the forcing and fighting and kept Johnson on the defensive.

BIG LEAGUE TALK.

It wasn't necessary for the Giants to hit yesterday.

The Athletics and Boston play two games today.

The Pirates have a shadow margin over the Giants this morning.

Today is the crucial one for the Giants. If they lose to the Phillies and Pittsburg wins from St. Louis and follows up by beating Chicago on Sunday, it's all off with McGraw's hirelings, notwithstanding that they win all three games from Boston.

Coveleski will probably be sent in against Mathewson today.

Joss's performance against Chicago was the real pitching feat of the season. To shut out a team from a hit when every play may possibly mean the turning of the championship, is some pitching.

Tenny was passed twice in the first inning. Not often a player has that distinction bestowed on him.

Mike Doolin got back in the game after an absence of two weeks. If Mike had only been on the job in New York the Giants might have had two less victories to their credit.

The Giants still have four more games to play—one with Philadelphia today and three with Boston next week. The Pittsburghs have two games to play—one with St. Louis today and another with Chicago tomorrow. The Chicago have two games to play—the one other than the Pittsburgh contest being with Cincinnati today.

Joss, of Cleveland, wants the several thousand dollars which go with the world's series. Any twirler that can pitch a no-hit game against Chicago in the heat of the finish of a race such as that in the American League, is certainly deserving of the extra coin.

GOLFERS PREPARE FOR FALL TOURNEY

Brightwood Links Are in Prime Condition for Annual Invitation Event.

Announcement was made today that among the players who will compete in the annual invitation golf tournament of the Columbia Golf Club, to be held on the links at Brightwood, commencing October 8, are Tom Sherman, son of the Republican nominee for Vice President; Walter Travis, a former golf champion of the United States, and Fred Heresshoff, a player of national reputation, who ran well up toward the finals in the championships this spring.

Young Sherman is touted as one of the most promising of the younger players in the East and has sustained his reputation by his showing in a number of open tournaments during the summer. He played in the spring tournament at the Columbia club.

F. E. Donohoe, of Mt. Clear, N. J., is another prominent golfer who has already forwarded his entry.

Win Up in Metropolitan.

The tournaments in the Metropolitan district wind up this week and many of the players will come to this city for the Columbia club's event.

Over 100 golfers are expected to enter. Only members of clubs in the United States Golf Association, and such other players as may be invited will be allowed to compete.

The links on Brightwood avenue are at present in better condition than they have ever been in the history of the club. The course has eighteen holes and is a real make it one of the best golf courses in the United States.

Large Prize List.

Among the prizes are silver cups and other silver pieces.

Prizes will be awarded in each of four sixteens. The first sixteen to qualify will play for the club trophy, which goes to the winner of the tournament. Second prize in the first sixteen will go to the runner-up. A prize is also offered for the consolation round in the first sixteen, and for winners and runners-up in all sixteens.

A qualification prize for the first day will go to the player with the lowest score in qualification round, medal play, eighteen holes. The handicap prize will be completed for Saturday, October 10. This prize goes to the player with the lowest net score for eighteen holes, medal play. A gross score prize has been offered to the player with the lowest gross score made in the handicap event.

Observe National Rules.

The United States Golf Association and established local rules will govern the contests. Entries close with Benjamin Woodruff, secretary of the club, on the evening before each event.

The golfers will commence play at 8:30 o'clock in the morning of October 8, and will finish about 6 o'clock on the afternoon of October 10. The qualification round is on the card for the first day, and on the morning of October 9 the second round in the four sixteens and the first round in the consolation will be played. In the afternoon of the same day the second round in the four sixteens will be played. Starting at 10 o'clock, October 10, the finals will take place.

MATHEWSON SLATED FOR GIANTS' GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—It will be Mathewson against Coveleski this afternoon, and that means a pitchers' battle that will go down in history.

The Giants need the victory in their business, and perhaps they will not fight for it tooth and nail. They can possibly afford to lose one more game of the four they still have to play, for they have three with Boston, while the Pirates and Cubs will be forced to remain idle.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL OPENS HERE TODAY

Georgetown Lines Up Against Gallaudet—Hatchettes Ready for Visitors.

The lid will be lifted on all corners of the football season in the District this afternoon, when Georgetown stacks up against Gallaudet on Georgetown Field and George Washington meets Western Maryland at Union League Park.

In addition to the opening of the college schedule, several of the smaller teams will inaugurate their playing season. Technical will play its annual game with Episcopal High School, near Alexandria, and Central High and the alumni team of that school were on this morning at Union League Park.

Maryland Agricultural College opens its season at Richmond College, and the work of the Axies at Richmond and Western Maryland here will be watched with interest, as the two teams will fight it out later for the championship of Maryland.

The Warwick Athletic Club will open fire with a game on the Southeast playgrounds with a strong picked team from Alexandria.

Varsity Elevens Primed For Opening Skirmishes

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 3.—The Tiers are lying low for today's game with Springfield training school.

There is some doubt about the outcome, as Springfield is always a strong eleven, and Princeton has had only ten days of practice and only two scrimmages. University Field was again the scene of scrimmage yesterday afternoon. The varsity and the scrub lined up for two fifteen-minute halves. Fully three teams were put in from the varsity squad, as there are a large number of men in the running for the various positions this year.

PROPOSE MILITARY BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Marines and Engineers Will Enter Teams—Cavalry in Line.

FIRST BATTALION BLAZES THE WAY

Players Meet Tuesday to Arrange for Practice—Over Forty Candidates Expected.

Captain Edwards of the Corcoran Cadets and Lieutenant Paretorius of D Company of the First Battalion, First Regiment of National Guards of this city, are endeavoring to organize a basketball league composed only of teams belonging to military organizations in and around the vicinity of Washington.

Efforts are being made to induce the following commands to enter teams: Company C, Hospital Corps stationed at Washington Barracks; United States Marine Corps; Batteries D and E, of the Third Field Artillery at Fort Myer; Thirtieth Cavalry from the same post; Corcoran Cadets, and First Battalion, First Regiment National Guard, and the United States Engineer Corps also at the barracks.

The proposed name is "The Military Basketball League of Washington." Captain Charles Reynolds of the Medical Corps and commanding officer of Company C of the Hospital Corps favors the idea, and it may be said that both the Marines and Engineers will enter teams. There may be a little trouble to induce the Cavalry to join, but the Artillery may be relied to have its representatives. Both teams from the National Guard will be sure to enter.

A. A. U. Rules to Govern.

The A. A. U. rules will govern all players, and teams and all players must be duly registered. A silver loving cup, to be held for one year, will be presented the winning team.

If this league is started and gets in working order, it will help to advance athletics in military circles, and will give the public a chance to witness the work of Uncle Sam's soldiers both in the regular army and in the militia.

Tuesday evening the basketball players of the First Battalion will meet at the armory, and the regular team will be picked, although Lieutenant Paretorius states that there will be over forty candidates for the team. Practice will commence next week for that team.

NATIONALS WIND UP AT NEW YORK TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—There will be two games between the Yankees and the Nationals at the American League grounds, which will be the last appearances of the New York aggregation here this season.

On Monday the Yankees will play in Boston, and they have a game scheduled in the same place on the following day.

The Yankees will then return to Washington, where they play two games on Wednesday. On Thursday they will play the Washington team again, and it will be their last contest of the season.

After Thursday's game the Yankees will make preparations for their home-going. However, most of them will wait around to see the world's series, as there is hardly a ball player in the business who would not set aside everything else to see that great series of contests.
